MORTGAGE SALE

Under and by virtue of the powers contained in a certain mortgage, which will be produced at the time of sale, there will be offered for sale by Public Auction, at the premises herein after described, on THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 23rd, 1916, at the hour of 2 o'clock in the afternoon, the following property:

All and singular that certain parcel or tract of land and premises situate lying and being in the Township of Richmond, in the County of Lennox and Addington, and Province of Ontario, and being composed of a part of the west half of lot number five, in the third concession of the said Township of Richmond, containing three-fourths of an acre more or less, and being eight rods in front on the concession line or York or Belleville road, and fifteen rods in depth, and being bounded on the east, west and north by lands conveyed by a Quit Claim Deed from Daniel Hess and Eliza Ann Hess to Ruth Perry, bearing date January the 5th, 1912, registered January 27th, 1912, in Book Fifteen, for the Township of Richmond, as Number 7947, and being all that part of said lot now owned by the said Mortgagor.

There is erected upon the said premises a house and barn, and the location of the premises is most desirable, being situated on the north side of the Belleville road, in a very choice neighborhood. The soil is very fertile and productive and lies sufficiently high to get the best results from good drainage.

pressure to bear, but the Roumanian resistance is so effective that progress is very slow. The Germans are about twelve miles south of the border, and Bucharest announced Wednesday that in this region their attacks have been repulsed. Berlin states that a number of mountain and machine guns were captured by an Austro-Hungarian force which penetrated the Roumanian positions.

The German defeat in the Valley of the Jiu, south of the Vulcan Pass, was clearly a costly affair for them. Bucharest announces that the pursuit of the beaten foe continues, and that six additional officers, 606 men and a great quantity of war material have been captured. In this valley alone during the past five days the Roumanians have captured 2,174 prisoners chiefly Bavarians accustomed to mountain warfare, and have defeated the enemy in a pitched battle, after which over a thousand German dead were found on the field.

The losses on the Carpathian front have been even greater. A wireless despatch from Bucharest Wednesday night stated that the ground gained by the Germans during the past eight days in the Carpathian region had been negligible, while they had lost in prisoners 3,000 men, besides many killed and wounded. The Roumanians captured also eight heavy guns, six field guns, forty machine guns and much material. The Moldavian army appears to be strong enough to prevent the Teutons from breaking thru the Carpathian passes, whatever may be the result of the campaign farther south in Wallachia.

The great struggle in central Galicia, in the region south of Brzezany, between the army of von Bothmer and that of General Letchitsky continues. After his retirement from the line of the Stripa in August von Bothmer, who commands one of the best of the Teuton armies, fell back westward to the Zlota Lipa. There for two months in the region of Brzezany he has resisted the best efforts of the Russians to turn him out, and on several occasions has conducted vigorous counter-offensives. One of these is now in progress, designed to relieve the pressure of Brusiloff's new offensive on the Teuton armies farther north in Volhynia. Petrograd reports that fierce battles are taking place in the wooded country south of Brzezany, and that after an intense bombardment with heavy artillery the Germans forced the Russians out of the southern part of a wood held by them. Elsewhere the German attacks were repulsed with heavy losses.

Little is heard of this great struggle in Volhynia and Galicia, but its result since June in reducing the enemy's strength has been of more importance even than the Somme campaign in the west. An estimate issued by a Geneva expert states that the Austrians have lost 850,000 men since the beginning of the year, of whom 450,000 are prisoners in the hands of the Russians and Italians. These heavy losses were incurred largely in Volhynia and Galicia during June, July and August.

The Italians are preparing for another big push on the Italian front east of Goritz and on the Carso. Their artillery has been engaged in an intense bombardment of the Austrian positions, and their aircraft have been

The British night report of the front announces a loss of 1,000 men at Les Boeufs in conjunction with the French, as a result of which ground was gained. The Germans are shelling heavily the British between Le Sars and Gueudecourt in the vicinity of the Scheldt. The weather is clear and aircraft are again able to fly. Without their aid effective preparation for an attack is impossible.

The French report tells of the capture of two trenches near and of a strongly organized group of trenches on the western side of the Wood of St. Pier south of Sainly. Paris adds interesting information that tober 24th, 6,011 prisoners were taken on the Verdun front, none of large calibre, ten 120 mm, 144 machine guns, mortars, and much other material. The Crown Prince must be in a very unhappy time when he is told to the All Highest just happened.

TOWN'S AFFAIRS

Editor of the Napanee Express—I wish to impose upon nature, to first of all, censure made in my last letter in which I said that the unpaid county rate for 1916 to provide for, was the correct amount was the gross amount of the rate is exactly as I stated $8000.

HYDRO ELECTRIC.—day, the 24th day of Oct., waited upon the Cabinet of Toronto with regard to the liability of the truth, and reason is reason, wherever found on Patrician or on Plebian ground, the use of a non de plume is legitimate.

Secondly—He says that I misstated facts when I said that the costs of street watering was met out of the general tax, and to prove this charge he makes the following statement, "of course the town paid the man for watering the streets, but paid him out of borrowed money." This reasoning is on a par with claiming that an account is still due because it was paid in silver instead of bank notes.

Thirdly—He says that it had become a scandal the way the town affairs had been managed before he was elected, that many evils had been allowed to creep in, that the councils of 1914 and 1915 were guilty of illegal, dishonest and criminal acts. Now, if this is true, then any citizen, the present mayor included, by not checking them in the public interest are equally guilty, not only for the watering, but for all apertanances in connection therewith, and also for all persons buying property where freedom from back taxes was guaranteed.

Then in the last clause of the mayor's letter he describes a vision he had of a dog and a sow, which is very suggestive (as far as the dog is concerned in portraying the duty of all persons in a community to do their part in clearing away the effects of their own deeds. So every person making dust should assist in laying it, as even dogs recognize and act up to this universal rule. But as for the poor sow. She possibly had not attained to the level of intelligence required.

So in conclusion, kind sir, after thanking you for your indulgence in the past, and in anticipation of your continuing it in regard to this, I beg to say, that as there is no hope of His Worship and I agreeing on this question, and as time and inclination both say quit, I submit and respectfully, he hoped, satisfied, he stated that the Government agreed to carry out the terms of contracts made with the Sey-er Company.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

To the Editor of the Napanee Express

Dear Sir,—His Honour, the Mayor, in his letter to you, commenting on mine of the week previous, the street watering, (stripped of its verbiage) confesses that his mind was filled with feelings of amusement and disgust. This was very unfortunate, as from a mind so burdened we expect thoughts and conclusions of a very mixed, and often, objectionable nature, as the following will show:

First—I used a non de plume for protection purposes. "Against whom, and what?" If the question is a public one, and the non de plume represents truthfully both the writer and his cause, then as sure as truth is on the liability of the truth, and reason is reason, wherever found on Patrician or on Plebian ground, the use of a non de plume is legitimate.

Secondly—He says that I misstated facts when I said that the costs of street watering was met out of the general tax, and to prove this charge he makes the following statement, "of course the town paid the man for watering the streets, but paid him out of borrowed money." This reasoning is on a par with claiming that an account is still due because it was paid in silver instead of bank notes.

Thirdly—He says that it had become a scandal the way the town affairs had been managed before he was elected, that many evils had been allowed to creep in, that the councils of 1914 and 1915 were guilty of illegal, dishonest and criminal acts. Now, if this is true, then any citizen, the present mayor included, by not checking them in the public interest are equally guilty, not only for the watering, but for all apertanances in connection therewith, and also for all persons buying property where freedom from back taxes was guaranteed.

Then in the last clause of the mayor's letter he describes a vision he had of a dog and a sow, which is very suggestive (as far as the dog is concerned in portraying the duty of all persons in a community to do their part in clearing away the effects of their own deeds. 1,000 CARS A DAY NOT ENOUGH.

A luxurious small car—like most ideals—was difficult of attainment.

And to attain it and still keep the price lower than any other complete automobile had ever been sold for, meant quantity production on a scale never before attempted in cars of this class.

We increased our capacity to 1000 cars a day—more than double any previous output of cars of this class.

And the result is this comfortable small car, beautiful and complete, for $890.

Never before has any complete automobile been sold at anywhere near so low a price.

And never before has any small, light, economical car been anywhere near so comfortable or so beautiful.

But so completely have we realized a popular ideal that 1,000 cars a day is not going to supply the demand.

If you order yours today, it will not be a day to soon to avoid delay.

Roumanians Force Invaders to Retire in Jiul Valley.

Left Wing of Balkan Army Has Also Advanced—Field Marshal von Mackensen Finds His Task Growing Steadily More Difficult as the Russian Troops Join Their Allies.

BUCHAREST, Oct. 31.—The Roumanian advance in the Jiul valley, in the region of Vulcan pass, in Wallachia, continues successfully, says
the official statement issued by the War Office Monday. The Roumanians have taken an additional 312
prisoners and four machine guns.

Hotly-contested battles are raging north-east and north-west of Campol-lung, the entrance to the Roumanian plain. The Roumanians have won a victory in the Prahovo valley to the north-east, where two attacks by von Falkenhayn's armies were repulsed.
An advance was also made on the Roumanian left wing. Berlin claims that south-east of Rothenthurn Pass several Roumanian positions were taken by storm, giving the Teutons possession of the dominating heights of the neighborhood. Another 700 prisoners were taken. The fact is admitted that south-west of the Szurdok Pass the Roumanians have forced the Austro-German columns to fall back.

In this region the Roumanians have strong points of support in the large towns of Braila, Galatz and Reni, to the north-west, on the other side of the Danube, whence reinforcements and supplies can be easily transported across the river. It was from Reni, at the bend of the Danube, that the Russians entered the Dobrudja to aid the Roumanians when the latter declared war. They crossed the river on pontoon bridges, which doubtless by this time have been strengthened for the passage of heavy artillery, which seems to be the chief need of the army opposing Field Marshal von Mackensen. Three good railroads reach the cities mentioned—from Czernowitz, Kishineff, and Bucharest—and it is safe to say that over all of them trains full of munitions and troops are now speeding to the Dobrudja corner.

Mackensen is meeting with little resistance. The allied command, it is believed, is willing to fall back steadily toward the Bessarabian line.
Their chief concern is to elude enveloping moves.

Sofia reports the capture of 500 additional prisoners, including some Russian telegraph operators.

The Russo-Roumanian army in the Dobrudja is retreating towards the pontoon bridges across the Danube from Hirsova northward to Tultcha and Isakcha, near the mouth of the river, according to Sunday's Bulgarian War Office statement. The Bulgarians have destroyed the bridge at Hirsova and the advanced guard on the eastern wing has reached the region of Babadagh, fifty miles north of Constanza.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The British steamer Rowanmore was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine on Oct. 26. Seven Americans, including five Filipinos, were on board the vessel. Several of them have given affidavits stating that a submarine shelled lifeboats while they were being lowered and after they were clear of the ship, without causing loss of life.

The Donaldson Line steamer Marina, outward-bound from Glasgow for Baltimore, was sunk by German submarine gunfire on October 28, 100 miles west of Cape Clear. The crew numbered 104, of whom 34
were picked up and landed at Crook-haven. Seventy others are missing, among them 49 residents of the United States, principally horsemen.

Marina Not Transport When Sunk.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Oct. 31.—
At the offices of the United States Shipping Co., local agents for the Donaldson Line, owners of the Marina, it was stated Monday that the Marina was not a transport in the service of the British Government.

"She is one of our regular steamers plying between here and Glasgow," it was said, "and was owned and operated as a merchantman by the Donaldson Line. She carried general cargo and sometimes horses for the British Government, but she had not been commandeered and still retained her status as a merchantman."

made at the Forest Products Laboratory on methods of handling wood chips suitable for paper pulp, it is announced that Wisconsin paper companies are now negotiating with the railroads for shipment to their factories of experimental trainloads of chips of Western woods adapted to paper making.

Previous investigations by the Forest Service have demonstrated that good grades of paper can be made from a number of Western woods. The experts now estimate that some of these woods, when cut into chips and dried and baled, can be delivered to the mills in Wisconsin at a very small advance over the cost of chips made from local timber. In Wisconsin alone, it is stated, there is an annual market for over 600,000 cords of pulpwood.

Russia's Resources Ample.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 31.—The Minister of the Interior, H. Protobopoff, has applied to the military authorities, according to the Rech, for permission to draw upon the military stores for food supplies for the populations of Petrograd and Moscow. The Minister points out that in view of the important part played by these capitals in the conduct of the war it is essential that they shall not be allowed to suffer for want of provisions. M. Protobopoff has asked that the commissary inform him what supplies can be spared for the civilians. Both the Minister of Agriculture and the Minister of the Interior have proposed relief measures dealing chiefly with questions of transportation, since the resources of Russia, they declare, are ample for the needs of the army and the people.

Russians Launch Offensive.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—A new Russian offensive has been opened in Galicia and Volhynia in an effort to lessen the Teuton pressure along the Transylvanian frontier. German headquarters reported Sunday that a heavy bombardment was in progress along almost the entire line on the Stokhod River. The maximum of intensity was reached directly west of Lutsk, where, it is assumed, the Russians are preparing for a heavy stroke. The Russian report mentions only reconnaissances and exchanges of fire in Volhynia. These it characterizes as successful.

Fire Damages Liner.

PARIS, Oct. 31.—None of the passengers or members of the crew on the French liner steamer Chicago, was injured through the fire which broke out on board the liner while bound from Bordeaux for New York, and which caused her to put into the Azores, where the flames in her hold were extinguished, says a telegram received Sunday by the French line from its agent in the Azores. The damage from the fire was slight.

The French brought down a German biplane hovering over their lines in this region.

The British raided a German-Bulgarian position at Crete de Tengs, on the Doiran front, after military preparation, and they inflicted considerable loss on the troops of the enemy holding the trenches. They brought down some German aeroplanes north of Lake Doiran.

British patrols also clashed with German and Bulgarian patrols north of Ormanli, on the Struma front, and west of Demi-Hissar. British aeroplanes bombed a hostile transport park with effective results.

Abyssinian Rebels Win Great Battle.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—A despatch received in London from the British minister to Abyssinia announces that a big battle has been fought 25 miles outside of the capital and resulted in a complete victory for the new government. Ras Mikhael, father of the late emperor was taken prisoner.

The deposed ruler, according to the despatch, is believed now to be among the tribes on the border of Abyssinia and Somaliland. The despatch adds that if the victory proves sufficiently decisive the question will be reconsidered of recognizing the new government.

Recent despatches announced the outbreak of a revolution in Abyssinia. A London despatch said Emperor Lij Jeassu, the 22-year-old grandson of the late Emperor Menelik, had been deposed and the Ouizero-Zeoditu, daughter of Menelik, had been proclaimed "empress of Ethiopia."

Deaf as an Adder.

The expression "deaf as an adder" is from the Psalms of David, where it appears in the following form: "Their poison is like the poison of serpents. They are like the deaf adder that stoppeth her ear, which will not hearken to the voice of charmers, charming ever so wisely." East Indian travelers tell us that there is a widely prevailing superstition in the east to the effect that both the viper and the asp stop their ears when the charmer is uttering his incantations or playing his music by turning one ear to the ground and twisting the point of the tail into the other.

FATALITY IN A WORD.

Why France Changed the Name of the "Life Saving Belt."

A vivid illustration of the power of mere words over human beings was once brought to the attention of French people by Francisque Sarcey.

After the wreck of the Bourgogne many passengers were found floating drowned with life preservers on. These life preservers were fastened upon the bodies, but round the middle instead of under the arms, and the greater weight of the upper part of the body had tipped the head under water and the person of course was inevitably drowned.

Now it appears that the greater number of the persons so drowned were French. The French term for life preserver is ceinture de sauvetage, or "life saving belt." This word ceinture suggests to the mind in its moments of disorder and unreadiness, such as a great catastrophe brings, the idea of putting on a belt, and as a belt is put round the waist and nowhere else the frightened person instinctively adjusts the life preserver close about the hips.

The result is that as soon as the person so provided falls into the water his body tips over, with the heavier part downward, and the head is plunged beneath the surface.

The word "belt," therefore, was the cause of the loss of many lives in the Bourgogne disaster. Sarcey accordingly proposed to counteract the fatal effect of the French word by renaming the article and calling it a brassiere, which is a kind of waist, and by bringing the word bras, or arm, to mind to teach people to put a life preserver on just underneath the arms.

ANCIENT POSTAL SERVICE.

The Old Persian and Roman System of Couriers on Horseback.

While the Roman postal service of ancient days was, of course, a crude system, yet the mails were forwarded with considerable speed. The system of couriers on horseback was borrowed from the Persians, who, according to Xenophon, had established it under Cyrus. The Roman adaptation of this was the best system of transmitting letters among the ancients.

All along the great Roman roads stations were erected at distances of five or six miles from one another. At each of these stations forty horses were constantly maintained, and by the help of relays it was easy to travel 100 miles in a day.

These services were intended for the state only, it being imperative to secure the rapid interchange of official communications. In the time of Julius Caesar the system was so well organized that of two letters the great soldier wrote from Britain to Cicero at Rome the one reached its destination in twenty-six and the other in twenty-eight days.

Private citizens were obliged to resort to the services of slaves, and it was not until the end of the third century that there was an establishment of a postal system for private persons by the Emperor Diocletian, but how long this system endured history does not inform us.

The supply of horses and their maintenance was compulsory, and only the

MOSBY'S PRESENT

A Gift and Message That Tickled Lincoln's Sense of Humor.

RETURNING THE COMPLIMENT.

An Equivalent That Was Appreciated and Treasured by the Confederate Colonel — An Episode Born of the Capture of General Stoughton.

Colonel John S. Mosby, the southern cavalry leader in the war between the states, accumulated many mementos of that long and bloody struggle, but none which he treasured more jealously than a lock of dark hair wrapped in a faded yellow scrap of newspaper. The hair was cut from the head of Abraham Lincoln. It was Lincoln's own hand which cut it, and the great war president himself who sent it.

In the spring of 1863 the Army of the Potomac lay along the north bank of the Rappahannock, about fifty miles south of Washington. The intervening country was, of course, in the possession of the Union troops. Off in the recesses of the Blue Ridge mountains, about thirty miles westward, was Colonel Mosby, with a body of picked southern cavalrymen, seeking to do what injury he could to the Federal outposts and lines of communication.

About the middle of March there encamped at Fairfax Court House, a village of about 500 inhabitants, halfway between Washington and the army on the Rappahannock, a force of several thousand Union troops under General Stoughton.

From a military point of view, his camp at Fairfax was nearly as safe as Boston. Between his own force and the southern army, under General Lee, lay General Hooker's great Army of the Potomac. Even Colonel Mosby's small force—less than a hundred men—was thirty miles away.

Nevertheless, Colonel Mosby determined to capture General Stoughton. Selecting twenty of his best troopers, he started one drizzling March afternoon for Stoughton's camp. It was after midnight when he ran into the first picket, who was easily captured in the darkness. And thus, taking picket after picket in the black night, Colonel Mosby made his way without alarm into the village, until he entered General Stoughton's bedchamber.

The unhappy officer was compelled to dress and accompany his captors. The pitch black, rainy night and the fact that the men of both commands wore rubber capes of the same style rendered it impossible for the prisoners, Stoughton included, to determine the number of the enemy. With half a hundred prisoners and a hundred horses, Colonel Mosby quietly made his way out of the camp and was soon beyond reach of pursuit.

The adventure created a stir in military quarters. Stoughton was roundly censured for allowing himself thus to be stolen from the midst of his troops, although he was in nowise to blame.

CURIOUS CORDOBA.

This Spanish Town Is So Compact It Looks Like One Building.

Cordoba is scheduled on the European itinerary as a half day stand. Those who go from Seville to Granada and those who go from Granada to Seville take Cordoba on their way. Fifteen minutes for the cathedral, five for the alcazar, an hour for luncheon and on to further discoveries—that is the Cordoba program. The hotels of Cordoba are, in consequence, unpalatial, a circumstance in itself which endears the little town to the judicious. I do not believe there is a lift in all Cordoba, and if your wife wishes for any reason to buy a new hat she must go out of the hotel for it, and then it will be three years old.

At night all the tourists are gone to Seville or Granada, and you and the Cordobans and the stars share the amenities of Cordoba's one boulevard, of which everybody is very proud, because it is much superior to anything that Paris or even Madrid can show. It was a lucky chance which caused them to build Cordoba so handily between Seville and Granada. It has provided a still little backwater for the traveler's repose, a spot where he may forget that American bars exist, eat his meals untroubled by the squeaking of a tango band and adventure himself among the mysteries of a bill of fare jelly printed in blue and illegible Spanish.

You could put your hat over Cordoba, and very little would protrude. It is the compactest little town. From the tower of the cathedral it all looks like one building. You can hardly perceive the streets, so closely do they wriggle among the houses. The roofs are yellow, brown, gray, red; the walls and their shadows every color in the world. Among the buildings the green of palms, orange trees, lemon trees, chestnuts, soothe the glare struck eye. The Guadalquivir snakes through its rich plains from the faraway flat hills (red, gray brown, yellow), and over all are the great sky of the south and the huge sun of the south, which imposes silence on the world till night shall set the guitars a-buzzing.—William Caine in Century.

CAUSE OF RHEUMATISM.

Cavities Holding Pus, It Is Claimed, Breed the Dread Ailment.

In the American Magazine is an article on rheumatism by Dr. Arthur R. Reynolds, who says:

"The cause of rheumatism is pus formed and imprisoned in some part of the body. It gets into the circulation and is carried by it to the region affected. These pus places may be in spots more or less closed up, so they are not easily drained. They may be located about the teeth, at the end of the roots of dead or diseased teeth, in the crypts of the tonsils, in some of the sequestered places in the nostrils, in the bony sinuses of the head. They may be in the bladder, the kidney, the gall ducts or other places. The pus producing spot may be as small or smaller than a pea or it may be larger. Its existence is frequently unknown to the patient, especially if it be hidden in soft tissue like the tonsil. It may

It was long a popular belief that the ignorant in England thought his wife at public sale a legal divorce. The latest kind on record occurred in John Thompson, a farmer, married for three years, his wife agreed to separation brought his wife into Carlisle, and by the bill he was about to sell her.

At midday Thompson wife on a large oak chair or halter of straw about her then made this announcement, I have to offer to my wife, Mary Anne otherwise Williams, whom I love to the highest and fairest is her wish as well as mine forever.

Weakness of the Great.

The two greatest men who appear in "Julius Caesar"—namely, Caesar himself and Cicero—are allotted but minor parts in Shakespeare's play, and to each with daring originality the dramatist has attributed a physical defect, for the existence of which history supplied him with no evidence. Caesar, for instance, confesses to deafness, bidding Antony—

"Come on my right hand, for this ear is deaf," while Brutus speaks of Cicero's "ferret and fiery eyes," as if no one could fail to note them. Respect for those two immortals was no doubt thus diminished, but by showing them as not above human weaknesses Shakespeare made them more easily realized.—London Opinion.

Rare Violins.

The rarest violins in the world are those which were made by Guarnerius del Gesu, only about forty of them being known to exist. One of these instruments was purchased by Ysaye for $30,000. Two famous Stradivarius instruments which were used by Sarasate during his great concert tours were sold. One of these, the Boissier, is in a museum at Madrid. It is valued at $50,000. The other is in a museum in Paris. There are only twenty-nine Stradivarius cellos in the world. Of the 300 Stradivarius violins that were made more than 200 have been bought and sold by one dealer.—Argonaut.

Imitation Gold.

By combining ninety-four parts of copper with six parts of antimony and adding a small quantity of magnesium carbonate to increase the weight, a substitute for gold is produced. This alloy, it is said, can be drawn, worked and soldered much the same as gold, and it also takes and retains a gold polish. It can be made for about 25 cents a pound when its constituents can be bought at normal prices.

Orchids.

Many plants have the power to shift their quarters. The orchid can move one step every year, and, although it takes a long time to cross the meadow, if the orchid goes on long enough it would move one step forward toward finishing that long walk every year.

Wig Wearing Very Old.

The ancient Egyptians all wore wigs, and the early Christians from A. D. 427 to A. D. 917 considered a false head covering a badge of distinction—this, too, in direct opposition to Tertullian, who in vain declared them devices and inventions of the devil.

Little Words.

Out of the 207 words in Abraham Lincoln's immortal Gettysburg speech 196 are words of only one syllable. It isn't the big words that count.

The worst of the person with nothing to say is that he is never happy till he's said it.

censured for allowing himself thus to be stolen from the midst of his troops, although he was in nowise to blame. President Lincoln, whose sense of humor nothing could quench, remarked, when told of the affair, that he did not mind losing the general, but the hundred horses were a serious matter. "I can make a general with the scratch of a pen," he said dryly, "but I can't make horses."

Shortly afterward Colonel Mosby, with a few companions, was reconnoitering in the vicinity of Washington. On the road he encountered an old Dutch market woman taking her garden truck in her cart to peddle it through the Washington streets. Colonel Mosby stopped and questioned her. Noticing a pair of scissors at her belt and having heard of President Lincoln's comments on General Stoughton's capture, he said:

"Do you know Mr. Lincoln?"

"Y'dh," replied the old woman. "Seen him often, I have."

Taking the scissors, Colonel Mosby cut off a lock of his hair, and wrapping it in a piece of paper handed it to the old woman, saying:

"I'm Colonel Mosby. When you get to Washington go to the White House and tell the president that Colonel Mosby sent him this lock of his hair and say also that he is coming over into Washington some night to get a lock of the president's hair."

The old market woman went her way, and Colonel Mosby rode back and forgot the incident. Some weeks later, however, when making another reconnaissance in that neighborhood, the old woman hailed him from a roadside cottage. Hurrying into the cottage, she brought forth a scrap of newspaper and delivered it to Colonel Mosby.

"Here iss a lock of President Lincoln's hair," she said. "He tol me to say to you that he hat rather you would not come ofer to see him and that he send it to you by me. Here it iss!"

Jewels of India.

For variety of precious stones no country in the world can rival India. Though she exports annually over £1,500,000 worth of jewels, she still remains today, as centuries ago, the storehouse for the nations. Diamonds, rubies, sapphires, tourmaline, garnet and many kinds of rare chalcedony are mined throughout her many provinces.

The diamond industry is carried on to a great extent in the central provinces. Rubies are mined in upper Burma and next to petroleum form the most profitable of the mineral resources of that state.

smaller than a pea or it may be larger. Its existence is frequently unknown to the patient, especially if it be hidden in soft tissue like the tonsil. It may even exist in the bony socket of a tooth without giving pain.

Several different organisms produce pus, and any or all may produce rheumatism when transferred to the joints or the heart.

The physician today seeks for the pus cavity when he meets a patient with rheumatism, and he endeavors to clean it up. Rheumatic pains have been stopped with magical promptness by simply extracting the offending tooth. It is not always easy to find the pus places in the hidden parts of the body. The X ray shadowgraph is essential in locating the trouble. It shows definitely and accurately all trouble about the roots of the teeth, and its use is therefore of the first importance in ferreting out the pus in the deep structures."

Duncan Smoked In Church.

Sir Walter Scott in his "Heart of Midlothian" refers to one Duncan of Knockdunder, an important personage, who smoked during the whole of the sermon from an iron pipe tobacco borrowed from other worshipers. We are told that at the end of the discourse he knocked the ashes out of his pipe, replaced it in his sporran, returned the tobacco pouch to its owner and joined in the prayer with decency and attention.

GAME IN THE ANTARCTIC.

Seal Steak Is Good, and So Are the Breasts and Eggs of Penguins.

In the antarctic there is not the immense variety of game which is to be found in north polar regions; but, on the other hand, it is very abundant, and can be turned into food with the smallest exertion. The Weddell seal, which sometimes weighs as much as half a ton, allows itself to be killed and cut up with placid calm. Its natural enemies are in the water, and for long generations it has been accustomed to bask in the sun undisturbed.

Seal steak is an acquired taste, but when acquired explorers prefer it to tinned provisions. It is a common assumption that seal flesh tastes of train oil. That is a mistake; the flesh itself contains no fat, but it is extremely rich in blood, and in taste suggests the Scottish delicacy known as black pudding.

Penguins, too, make a very desirable addition to the antarctic larder. Eptures eat only the breast, which is rather like hare, but of a more delicate flavor. The eggs, which are very abundant in the spring, suggest ducks' eggs, but are about four times as big. They are excellent eating if you happen to pick a new laid one, but this is naturally something of a lottery, and a penguin egg can be very bad indeed.—London Chronicle.

OUR OTTAWA LETTER

Secretary McCurdy will stay on the job as a sort of a rest to Sir Sam. Secretary McCurdy's slow smile will be used to cool off indignant army contractors. This will leave most of Sir Sam's time free to act as an ornament, parade Napoleon, a thing he dearly loves.

Holding parades is one of the best things Sir Sam does, that and riding a horse for the moving pictures when the light is good.

Now that the autumn rains on him, most days are dull days and Sam's usefulness as a film hero is somewhat curtailed. But ever and anon the sun breaks through and then Sam gets his chance.

Sir Sam is still the Minister of Militia and Master of the Administration. For all we know he still broods over the Shell Committee, colleagues with Allison, influences the purchase of supplies and acts as boss generally. He certainly sells fish to the British War Office, acts as godfather to the M. P.'s of the British Isles, and creates Overseas Military Councils, which includes such of his family as are not already drawing fat salaries from the Government. Sir Sam is still boss. He is more than that. He is to act as the Bright Spot of the Borden Government.

Sir Sam is to have every facility for being a bright spot. Along these lines he may go as far as he likes and the Government won't do a thing to stop him. On the contrary, they will be tickled to death if Bright Spotting keeps him busy enough to prevent him doing any real harm. The difficulty is to find picturesque assignments for him, and when they do find them the rain comes along as it did at Camp Borden the other day, and upset the arrangements.

Yes, Sam is to be the Bright Spot, the Man on Horseback. The close season for reviews is at hand, but Sam ought to be able to slip one or two in before winter puts the kibosh on that sort of thing.

In another fortnight Camp Borden will shut up shop for the winter, the army will strike tents and steal away to comfortable Toronto, or elsewhere, and Sam's sand-stricken field of glory will be left to the north wind and the caretakers. Rumor has it that Camp Borden isn't going to be a military camp forever.

Hush little swamp hole,
Don't you cry.
You'll be a toon-site
Bye and bye.

Back of this rumor is the fact that Camp Borden was laid out, not as a camp, but as a town-site. It has a permanent water-works, a sewage system with septic tanks, cement roads, electric lights—everything, in fact, except adaptability for the purpose for which it was constructed. Camp Borden, with its sand mosquitoes, has earned the dislike of every soldier quartered there. No one has a good word to say for it as a camp. But there are worse town sites. Sir Sam himself has been connected with worse ones in the prairie West. It is a tremendous white elephant and has no prospect whatever of making good as a military camp. Nobody would be surprised if some real estate operator War Office, not to dim his splendour came along and bought up, say at a hundred thousand dollars, a plant for which the Government paid a million. The Government could charge up the nine hundred thousand dollars difference to profit and loss. What is nine hundred thousand dollars to a Government that blew in six million dollars on Ross rifles after the British War Office had reported that they were all wrong as service weapons, and recommended that they be discarded? The money loss is the least part of it. Think of the Canadian boys who fell at Ypres because their Ross rifles jammed and they could not return the fire of the Germans, who were shooting our own Canadian nickel back at us because the London Government had left it to the Nickel Trust's honor not to sell to the enemy.

But why speak of these matters? Sir Sam's mistakes have been made—somebody else can shoulder them. Sir Sam's pleasure is to act as the Bright Spot. As a preparation for his new sphere of endeavor the British War Office has conferred on Sir Sam the rank and title of Honorary Lieutenant-General. Some bonhomie will ask, "Why he was a Major-General before. Now he's a Lieutenant-General. Are they letting him down?" Not at all. Sam's rising. From the bottom of the ladder major looks like a bigger adjective than lieutenant as qualifying a general, but Sam is so near the top that from now on the adjectives have the reverse English. As a Lieutenant-General Sam is so high up that he couldn't be higher unless he was a Field Marshal. As every fan knows there are two kinds of Field Marshal, Outfield and Infield. In case of further promotion Sir Sam would be an infield Marshal because his party is in office. If you're out you stay out. Look at General Lessard, a brave man and a brilliant soldier, but doomed to inaction because Sam's idea is that this is strictly a Tory war which does not include South African heroes who happen to be Liberals.

To resume. Sir Sam is an Honorary Lieutenant-General. The word "honorary" signifies, of course, that he doesn't run any risks with it. Like the honorary colonels, all the honorary lieutenant-generals are expected to perform is the social duties of their high estate, said duties involving no peril of life or limb. As an Honorary Lieutenant-General, Sir Sam will have the most conspicuous and influential positions in Canada as an arm chair startegist. None of the Rideau Club generals will be able to dispute his word. What he says goes—including his remarks about the Ypres salient. His rank as Honorary Lieutenant-General confers this right upon him. So far as club-house tactics go, Honorary Lieutenant-General Sir Sam Hughes is the supreme authority in Canada. That's what his new job means. He is, so to speak, the fountain of honorability in this part of His Majesty's overseas dominions—honorary colonels—honorary Ross rifles, honorary manoeuvres of all sorts.

As Honorary Lieutenant-General, Sir Sam will sport an extra crown on his shoulder straps and an inch more of red band on his cap. On dress occasions he will wear a full grown rubber plant and a helmet inlaid with diamonds instead of a chapeau bras with feathers. Moreover, the British War Office, not to dim his splendour by comparison, has issued an order that no Canadian Honorary Colonel shall wear his uniform anywhere within the purleus of the Three Kingdoms. This means that when Sir Sam visits London he shines alone on Piccadilly and the Strand and gathers all the salutes from both sexes. It seems a pity that the regulations could not be extended to Canada, where honorary colonels are working themselves to death travelling as much as five hundred miles to attend afternoon tea at the Governor General's. What hardships these heroes put up with! Often and often they have to dress on the train.

Blow of a Whale's Tail.

Ask ten persons what is the strongest animal force in the world and nine will reply that it is the blow of a lion's paw. The tenth man may express the belief based on experience, that it is the kick of a Missouri mule.

As a matter of fact, the blow of a whale's tail is incomparably the strongest animal force. A blow delivered by a full grown whale placed at just the right distance would smash in the side of a wooden ship as though it were an eggshell.

The second strongest force is the kick of a giraffe, and this terrible kick is adequate protection to these otherwise helpless animals. The stroke of the lion's paw comes third on the list.

OLD TIME SUNDAY LAWS.

Rigid Rules For Harvard Students Two Centuries Ago.

In "The Story of Harvard" Mr. Arthur Stanwood Pier gives an account of the strict regulations formerly set down for the guidance of the Harvard undergraduates by the president and the fellows of the corporation. The old laws, intended to enforce upon the undergraduates a more religious and studious life, would be considered repressive and tyrannical today.

"All the scholars shall at sunset in the evening preceding the Lord's day retire to their chambers and not unnecessarily leave them, and all disorder on said evening shall be punished as violations of the Sabbath are.  And whosoever shall profane said day—the Sabbath—by unnecessary business or visiting, walking in the commons or in the streets or fields, in the town of Cambridge, or by any sort of diversion before sunset, or that in the evening of the Lord's day shall behave himself disorderly or in any way unbecoming the season, shall be fined not exceeding 10 shillings.

"That students may furnish themselves with useful learning, they shall keep in their respective chambers and diligently follow their studies, except half an hour at breakfast, at dinner for from 12 to 2 and after evening prayers till after 9 of the clock. To that end the tutors shall frequently visit their chambers after 9 o'clock in the evening and at other studying times, to quicken them to their business."

It does not seem that under such a system of vigilance and visitation the students could fall into very dissolute ways. But a few years later George Whitefield, the famous evangelist who so stirred up New England, visited Harvard college and expressed his displeasure at the dissipated habits of the young men. He declared conditions at Oxford were no worse, a charge so damaging that it greatly disturbed and incensed the college authorities.

MIXED IT WITH MYSTERY.

But the Secret of Portland Cement Was Solved by a Busybody.

Portland cement may be defined as a product made by burning limestone and clay, which have been mixed so as to form a certain composition, and grinding the resulting "clinker" to powder.

In the early days much mystery surrounded the manufacture of Portland cement when it was first discovered by a bricklayer of Leeds, England. He found that by mixing water with a compound of Thames chalk and Medway mud he could compound an artificial water cement and determined that no one should discover his secret. When employed in manufacturing his raw mixture he is said to have attired himself in a long black gown and the pointed hat of the mystic and to have recited mysterious incantations during his operations.

But a curious onlooker who determined to ascertain his ingredients and methods had a sample analyzed by a chemist, whose result showed 90 per cent phosphate of lime. Thinking that he had solved the secret, he began to calcine all the bones he could gather up

Bible that standardized all the dialects of Britain and that bound them together into a living speech, and it was the Bible that was the foundation of the education and culture of England. As the English historian Green says, "The English people became a people of a book, and that book was the Bible."

To a large degree the same is true of Germany, but it is not necessary to go back to the middle ages to find the Bible forming a nation's culture and fixing its language.

On many of the mission fields, especially in Africa, the language of the natives had never been reduced to writing until the missionary provided them with an alphabet in order that the Bible might be translated into their tongues. The Bible has then become both the language textbook and the spiritual guide of these African nations. In mission schools the world over the Bible is the language textbook. The people of the mission lands want their children to learn the western tongue, and they send them to the school. methods had a sample analyzed by a chemist, whose result showed 90 per cent phosphate of lime. Thinking that he had solved the secret, he began to calcine all the bones he could gather up in the village, much to the discomfort and objections of his neighbors, who finally induced him to desist. Following, however, the old system of cut-and-try, he finally solved the problem and eventually produced a cement equal to that of the original compounder, and the great industry began to thrive at once.

In this country the Portland cement industry had its beginnings in the Lehigh valley in Pennsylvania, chiefly in Lehigh and Northampton counties, where John W. Eckert, chemist, discovered that there occurred a limestone composed of approximately the correct ingredients necessary for the manufacture of Portland cement.—Smithsonian Institution Bulletin.

When Is a Bath Not a Bath?

Sometimes I lived with my grandmother. She always bathed me herself before she put me to bed. The bathtub was very long and deep. Grandmother stood on the step which ran beside it with a big towel pinned about her. She held my neck tightly between her thumb and second finger, scrubbing me with her other hand. I slipped and fell from one side to the other, splashing the water high over the edges, so that when she finally lifted me to the floor the towel and her dress were drenched.

"There," she would say, "that is hardly better than a sponging off. You won't sit still while I give you a real bath."

I used to go to sleep wondering how she would give me a real bath.—Katherine Keith in Atlantic.

The Test of Greatness.

When Elliston, the theatrical manager, went from London to his own theater at Birmingham he was known to scarcely a member of his own company. On reprimanding one of them sharply the irate actor threatened to kick him off the stage. He rushed to the stage manager and asked who that man was.

"Mr. A." said the manager.

"A great man, a very great man," said Elliston. "He threatened to kick me, the lessee of Drury Lane. Such a man as that must go to London. He mustn't waste his energies here." And he engaged the actor on the spot for Drury Lane.

Very Tactful.

"I was presented at a ball," said Jones, "to a young lady whose proportions were anything but meager. After the accustomed manner, I asked her to honor me with a dance. She replied with a desolate air:

"I am only free for the cotillion, and I cannot pledge myself for that, because I am not certain whether my people will not be leaving before it comes off."

Jones thought he would seize the chance of a compliment and said, "Oh, how empty the room will seem when you have left it."

You should have seen the savage look that she gave poor Jones.

ing out, as Mr. MacLean remarked, so many points that apply so strongly to all other subjects of our course.

Mr. Reid, Principal of The Ontario College of Art, spoke on Teaching Art in the Public School, and took as his text a remark made by Dr. White, "You cannot teach what you do not know." After his lecture, he showed specimens of the beautiful work done by students of the College and advised teachers to take a course there.

Mr. Orval Madden followed with a short talk on "Design", showing drawings to illustrate his subject.

The teachers were much disappointed that time did not permit of Miss Shannon adding to the discussion.

During the Social Hour, Miss Baldson, of Centreville, gave a violin solo, accompanied on the piano by Miss N. Shannon, and the teachers were served with ice cream and cake by the following young ladies of Mr. Root's class—Misses Elizabeth Waller, Margaret Daly, Helen Wallace, Hazel and Mildred Roblin and Nora Gleeson.

The success of the evening concert given in the Town Hall, on Thursday, at 7.30 p.m., was due mainly to the untiring efforts of Mr. J. M. Root, Principal of the Public School under whose direction the hall was so tastefully decorated and the excellent programme prepared.

The chairman's address was given by the President, Mr. Nesbitt, B.A., I.P.S.

The lecturer of the evening was Dr. Coleman, of Queen's University, Kingston, who spoke on "National Ideals in Education", a most pleasing and instructive address. He was accompanied by Mrs. Coleman, to whom the teachers feel deeply indebted for a lovely vocal solo and encore.

The other numbers on the programme were, a violin solo by Miss Root, and two quartettes by the orchestra of Trinity Sunday School.

Mr. Curran, Agricultural Office, Napanee, gave three sets of films illustrating school fairs, the proper care of orchards and of milk.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Friday, the morning session opened at 9 o'clock, 95 being present.

A letter from Mr. M. R. Reid, M.A., I.P.S., was read, giving an account of the plan they are adopting to establish a teachers' library in the Inspectorate of Frontenac North and Addington. Mr. Nesbitt thought some such plan should be adopted in his Inspectorate, as the teacher who ceases to be a student, lacks life. He was asked to name a Library Committee to confer with Mr. Reid's committee, and to report at our next Convention. He chose the following members:—Messrs. MacLean, Sanderson and Judge, and Mrs. Alkenbrack and Miss Mitchell. Carried.

Miss Parke gave the Report of the O. T. A., and suggested a delegate to be sent to Toronto at the next meeting of the O. E. A. Miss Blanche Hawley was chosen unanimously.

The Committee to consider the Report of the O. E. A., including the Superannuation Bill, then read the following:—

We, the Teachers of Lennox and Addington, in Convention assembled, express our appreciation of the efforts of Dr. Pyne, Minister of Eduto form a local committee. The Department furnishes seeds, etc., and a fairs, awarding prizes, asked the teachers to with the Council, prepare and the field for games, would be thankful for a tions and was grateful for the past, and hoped the be even more successful. J. F. W. SANDERSON, Chairman.

The Auditors reported that the Secretary's books had been examined and found correct.

Moved by Mr. MacLean, seconded by Mr. Sanderson, that the report be adopted. Carried.

A class in Nature Study was to have been conducted by Mr. M. R. Reid, M.A., I.P.S., and many expressions of regret were heard when it was learned he was unavoidably absent.

Mr. Nesbitt then called on Dr. White for his second lecture, remarking that, judging from his first lecture, the teachers might expect something both interesting and educative. His subject was "Improving the Teaching of History", which he dealt with under the following heads:—why we teach history, what to teach and how to teach it; at the same time offering the teachers many helpful suggestions as to how to secure help.

The History discussion was led by Miss Murphy, Newburgh High School, Messrs. Root, Andrews and MacLean. They all expressed themselves as delighted with the lecture, and Mr. Nesbitt suggested that Dr. White be made an Honorary Member of this Institute. Moved by Mr. Sanderson, seconded by Mr. MacLean, and carried unanimously. Dr. White thanked the Association for the honor.

Roll Call, Friday, 1:30 p.m., showed 56 present.

The election of Officers resulted as follows:—

President—Mr. J. M. Root, P. S., Napanee.

Vice-President—Mrs. A. Alkenbrack, Tamworth.

Secretary-Treasurer—Miss E. Harrison, Napanee.

Advisory Council—Messrs. MacLean, Root, Andrews and Misses Mitchell, Frink, Long and Driscoll.

Auditors—Messrs. MacLean and Sanderson.

Delegate to the O. E. A.—Mr. Nesbitt, B.A., I.P.S.

Delegate to the O. T. A.—Miss B. Hawley, Napanee.

Moved by Mr. MacLean, and seconded by Mr. Sanderson, that this Association tender a vote of thanks to the School Board for the use of the Hall of the N. C. I.; to all who kindly assisted in making this Convention such a success. Also to those who served refreshments; and that the Treasurer be empowered to pay all the outstanding debts of this Convention. Carried.

Mrs. Alkenbrack gave a paper on "Agriculture in Rural Schools", and showed how helpful this work becomes, not to individuals only, but to the whole community. She strongly urged the teachers to take a course at Guelph, not as an aid in teaching Agriculture merely, but Nature Study also.

Mr. Corkill said if they did, they would never regret it. Mr. Root pronounced her paper "splendid", and said we would all go on her excursion to Guelph next summer.

Mr. Curran asked the teachers to interest themselves in the fairs and detail had been thoughtful and successfully carried out.

Several members of the C Auxiliary opened the session with devotional exercises and new organizer then took

And we are not to use just our ability, but our consecrated ability. This places everything on a broader plane. We use our abilities with new motives, new hopes, and with entirely new powers of effort. If we are consecrated we will seek "whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely and of good report. Not one of us can say "I have no ability." Life and ability, of some sort, God has given to all. We can make or mar it. We are here for the purpose of carrying out God's divine plan, and if we wish to develop spirituality we must use every God-given power we possess. We must carry out the little everyday opportunities if we wish to be entrusted with more important things. We are not expected to do something big, but to do justly, love mercy, and walk humbly with God. Each one of us has her own special place. Find it. Fill it. Begin where you are and work where you are. Every woman has it in her power to make her life count for something positive in the redemption of society, and this is what every woman is bound to do if she has consecrated her ability. We must make a steady effort to cultivate the ability we already have. The best of life lies in service, and the best reward is "more work" and more power to do it. We must cultivate our abilities so that we may have the best influence by "reading the best books" association with the noblest and best, and above all study the bible. The paper closed with Wadeline Pridges' "Life's Mirror." Give to the world the best you have, and the best will come back to you.

Mrs. R. C. Moss, of Tamworth, got very close to the hearts of her hearers in her wonderful paper on prayer. Its place and power in our work. More things are wrought by prayer than the world dreams of. It is the linking of our helplessness to God's Almightiness. There is an appointed way in which we are to pray. This is by yielding ourselves entirely unto God's will. And our prayers must be made in faith. We all remember how our childhoods prayers were always answered. It was because we had perfect faith. Rev. E. J. Bishop once said that the prayer you cannot help praying is as sure of being answered as if it were already done. Prayer must be earnest, and we must have a real interest in that for which we pray. To gain this interest in our work we must know our missionaries and their needs. Study classes are provided for this purpose. Our missionaries, often standing alone without the help of human consolation, more than any others need our prayers, that they themselves may be kept and that they may be so inspired "that much people may be added unto the Lord through their instrumentality." Paul earnestly solicited the prayers of his brethren. We should pray for one another, for only as our spiritual condition at home is healthy and strong can we be used to propagate spirituality in heathen lands. Some one says "I have prayed for my children for years and still they are not saved." When we get enough in earnest over the souls of our loved ones they will be saved. Instances after instance of direct answer to prayer were given in proof of its power. God will answer all prayers if they are earnest, persistent and full of faith.

At the close of this paper the convention was in perfect readiness for the Quiet Half Hour which followed in a consecration service, also led by Mrs. Moss.

Many important questions were discussed and finally settled by Mrs. J.
A. Wartman, who ably conducted the Question Drawer.

Tamworth extended a cordial invitation for the next Convention, which was accepted.

EGGS IN HEATED RICE.

A Way the Chinese Have for Hatching
Ducks and Chickens.

The Chinese method of hatching as many as 500 duck and chicken eggs in one sitting has not yet been adopted in this country.

Unhulled rice is used for the purpose, and when this has been roasted
it is either cooled by a fanning process or the wind is allowed to blow through it until it is lukewarm.

The breeder then sprinkles a three inch layer of rice in the bottom of a wooden tub, and on this surface places about 100 eggs; another layer of rice about two inches thick is spread over them, and on this layer eggs are also placed, and the tub is filled in this way until there are six layers of rice and five of eggs, making 500 eggs in all in the tub.

Every twenty-four hours the rice has to be heated, and for this purpose the eggs have to be removed, the bottom layer this time being placed on top and the other layers one row lower down,
the eggs that occupied the central position in the tub now being placed at the edges.

There is some difficulty in gauging
the exact time at which the eggs will hatch, and unless care is taken some of the young ones are likely to be smothered. This is, of course, the point at which the ability of the expert is shown.

She Ran For President.

advocating woman suffrage. She ob-tained only about 2,500 votes out of a total of 10,000,000. Mrs. Lockwood in 1873 had been admitted to the bar of the Columbia and in 1879 was admitted to all had been thoughtfully planned and successfully carried out. Several members of the Camden East Auxiliary opened the afternoon session with devotional exercises. The organizer then took charge. Mrs. Arthur Baker, Moscow, responded happily to the greetings, in behalf of the delegates.

Very interesting reading was given by Mrs. H. A. Carscallen, of Enterprise. It dealt with the excuse so often given by women when a request for time or money for Missionary work is presented, the title being, "So Much to Do at Home."

Perhaps our hearts are all the more ready these sad days of war and trouble, but certainly a deeply spiritual atmosphere was manifest in the optional services, and at the quiet hour, as never before.

"Faith, Prayer and Service" seemed to be the key-note of the day.

Mrs. C. E. Breault brought the subject of Christian Stewardship before in a paper with many practical helpful ideas.

He maintained that the money left to save souls MUST be the duty of Christians. That with increase of means came increase of responsibility, and that there is no escape from this responsibility. When He created all things He also made us to govern all things.

He did not leave the maintenance of the Kingdom to chance or to the liberty of man. Taxation is the principle of temporal government, and God's law is the "tithe" or the "tenth."

He demands a seventh of our time and a tenth of our means. We do not question the wisdom of giving a seventh of our time yet comparatively few obey the laws of the tithe.

In this partnership God furnishes everything. Health, strength, and dominion, and He gives the increase. Our share is nine-tenths. The other tenth was never ours to give. It is to be PAID, not given. We keep the tenth commandment as if it read, "Thou shalt not steal anything except God's tithe." It is just as practical and safe to obey God in this as in any other command, and God never gives a command without a promise. The matter of "can't afford it" is a great hindrance to tithing.

God never exacts the impossible. Our ways are not God's ways. There hat scattereth abroad and yet increaseth, and there is that with-holds and yet tendeth to poverty. Generosity and faith are needed in our spirit of giving. No Christian thinks of withholding a part of the Sabbath because he is poor. It is God's sing which maketh rich. He can bless the nine-tenths which is however ours that it shall be of more use than if we rob God and have tenth more.

Mrs. Breault closed her splendid paper with the assurance that the best guidance in the matter of giving will result from "earnest prayer" and study of what God Himself says on the subject.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Price, of Newmarket, rendered very sweetly a duet, "All There Be Light at Eventide." Miss Balston, of Centreville, contributed a beautiful violin solo during afternoon.

"Consecration of our Ability" was the theme of an excellent paper by Mrs. Jas. Wilson, of Strath-

A TALE of RED ROSES

By

GEORGE
RANDOLPH
CHESTER

"It won't do you any good to belittle Bert," she flared.

"I can't," he informed her. "I kept my mouth shut, but now I got to spill what I know. These pretty men are always worse after they're married. Bert's a bum! He's got a streak of yellow the size of a canal. He ain't got the brains of a tadpole. He can't make a living unless somebody helps him. You'd hate his bones in six months. So don't you marry him!"

"I am the one to decide on that," Molly indignantly advised him.

Sledge looked at her a moment contemplatively, then he opened the forward window.

"Stop!" he ordered Billy, and closed the window again. "All right; go to it; decide," he unexpectedly told her as the machine stopped. "But be on the level now. Do you love Bert?"

"That's my affair," she evaded, flushing.

"Naw, it ain't," he insisted. "It's mine. Do you love him enough to be poor with him? Now, be square."

Molly was silent.

"You don't," he concluded. "Put it the other way. How about Bert? Now, don't kid yourself."

Again Molly was silent. She could answer that question if she chose, and the picture of little Jessie Peters' sublime adoration of Dicky Reynolds came before her eyes, linked with the memory of Bert's face when he had suggested a postponement. Being broke was an incident with Jessie and Dicky and entirely aside from their love. With Bert and herself it was the love which had been incidental.

Sledge waited a reasonable time for her to allege Bert's enthusiasm.

"Home!" he commanded Billy. "You see, I'm wise, Miss Molly. That pin-head couldn't love anybody enough to go the distance. I can. I'll murder anybody you name. Want anybody killed?"

"You!" she savagely retorted and then, to her own surprise, laughed. She had put her hand on the catch of the door; but, since he made no attempt to stop her, she left it there.

"You don't hate me that much," he calmly informed her. "You like me." Again she laughed, this time at his naivete. "You see, it's like this," he explained: "I'm a big slob, and I'm rough. I ain't pretty, and I know it, but I can start something any minute, and when I do I can finish it. You don't know it, but you're strong for governor's house. I bought it, furniture and all. I sent Waver to Paris."

"You're a continuous shock," she laughed. "You do such big things."

"That's nothing," he sheepishly denied. "Waver's tickled stiff. I got him a big job. He didn't want to sell, though."

Molly longed for Fern.

"I thought the governor was going to Switzerland," she observed, wondering how things fell so conveniently to Sledge's hand.

"Naw; Judge Lansdale's going there," he told her, looking moodily ahead at the road. "You'll take me out to the house before you go back. won't you, Molly?"

"Who's there?" she inquired.

"Mike and the servants. They went with the furniture."

Sledge seemed to feel no need of a Mother Grundy, and she realized, with a trace of approbation, that there was a fineness in him which made decency a matter of principle rather than of circumstances.

"I don't mind the ride," she laughed, feeling suddenly triumphant. After all, she had won her battle with Sledge and had reduced him to the pulpy consistency all men should be in their loves. The conquest was a tremendous one, she smilingly thought as she looked at him and remembered his reputation for high handed ruthlessness. Somehow, however, she had not quite the glee in her victory to which she was entitled.

He was so obviously downcast that she wanted to cheer him up, but she could think of nothing to say which would lighten the heavy gloom now settling upon him. That failure in itself made her feel rather mean, and she was not at all satisfied with herself when they finally drew up to the porch of the magnificent Waver mansion.

Sledge alighted immediately and held out his hand.

"You fooled me before," he charged, "but that's off."

"It's off," she assured him in his own language. His big hand was warm and a solid, substantial thing to hold to. She was glad that he liked her so well. It was safe and comfortable to know that.

"Good words!" he approved. "Molly, you're a lady." He still held her hand. He looked at it foolishly. He squared his shoulders with sudden defiance. He kissed it! "Back to Mar-

"Just what do you mean is so great?" inquired Molly.

"Oh, everything. Wait a minute." There was a pause, and then there was a great change in the voice of Fern. "Tell me it isn't so, Molly! Tommy says you're not going to marry Sledge."

"Did you really expect me to?" asked Molly curiously.

"Why, of course I did!" declared Fern. "You're crazy in love with him! You always have been. Now, haven't you?"

"Have I?" wondered Molly, dazed and thinking it over.

"Of course you have," insisted Fern. "You've been dippy about him ever since he sent out that first wagon load of red roses, only you're too stubborn to say so. I'm so disappointed I can't see, Molly!"

"Why?"

"It was so romantic. Tommy's been telling me all about it. Tommy's already got the county clerk by phone at his home, and he's gone over to the courthouse to get a blank marriage license. He's probably on the way out there now, to have you fill it in at the house, and Judge Blake is with him to perform the ceremony. I was going to bring out your father in my blue car and make Tommy run red one."

"Have him bring Jessie," begged Molly.

"I don't think she'll come," regretted Fern. "Her folks won't let her."

"Dicky will," Molly assured her. "Invite Dicky too. Tell him I want him. Have him bring Smash. He likes Dicky. And bring all my red roses!"

"Anybody else?" asked Fern, quivering with eagerness. "You can't have Bert, you know. He's gone. He's hustled down to the police station to have Sledge arrested."

Both the girls laughed hilariously at that absurd idea, while Sledge stood by in a dumb trance.

"We'll hide him," giggled Molly, "if we can find any place big enough. I don't want Judge Blake, Fern. Has Dr. Templeton gone?"

"Yes, but we can get him again," shrilled Fern, whose voice had been gradually rising in pitch as she became more and more excited. "He'll do anything for me. Say, Molly, Jessie's here yet, and she just tells me that she's afraid she won't dare come. Sledge, you know."

"You tell Jessie it's all right," directed Molly. "Mr. Sledge is going to take father's company into the consolidation, and that will make everybody's stock worth a hundred dollars a share tomorrow morning, and the West End bank can pay out its depositors, and Bert Glider can sell out his stock and his amusement park property at a profit and go back east and be a social leader." She turned from the telephone a minute. "Say, Benny," she addressed Sledge mischievously, sliding her disengaged hand affectionately up on his shoulder, "would you object to have Dr. Templeton marry us?"

"That preacher that soaked me in the neck?" queried Sledge. "Lord, no!"

STORY OF AN ORN

The Lavalliere and the French Who First Wore It.

Do you know what a lavalliere? You have seen many necklaces of more or less elaborate design, suspended from chains that were massive, which were sold in bazaars. The traveler who has business will tell you that and highly ornate ornament hand wrought gold and studded with many gems, suspended from chain and reposing on the just above the low cut botto "stomacher," whereas the "i" is light and delicate in construction with not more than three and is on a slender chain.

The heavy ornament was worn on the front of the entire front part of a bodice, tended down over the pit of the neck, being called the stomacher. It was an English mode, where the lavalliere came into existence in 1666, having been designed by Francois Louise de la Valliere, when she was made Queen of the petticoat when Louis was but two years old and when Colbert was making the French and the French army the greatest and most formidable powers in Europe. In 1670 she retired to a convent, where she spent her declining years in a mournful essay, "Refle on the Pity of God."—Exchange rough. I ain't pretty, and I know it, but I can start something any minute, and when I do I can finish it. You don't know it, but you're strong for that."

With a thrill Molly realized that he was right in this. She did admire force. She admired Sledge, and, now that she had time to think it over, something within her responded to his direct and simple method of breaking up her wedding.

"But love is different," she replied, arguing more to herself than to him.

"Nix!" he denied. "It's the strongest thing there is."

"Love cries," Molly mused, remembering Jessie.

"It hurts," he agreed. "It used to sound like a joke to me—till I got it. Now I want to break chains with my chest. Molly, when I think of you I could holler. I don't dare touch you. It makes me weak. You don't want to go back and marry Bert, do you?"

His voice had in it a trembling plea, so un-Sledge-like that she would have pitied him had she not been so absorbed in her startling attitude toward the question he had asked her. Nothing seemed more remote and absurd than that she should go back and marry Bert.

"No!" she bluntly confessed.

Sledge opened the front window.

"Hurry up!" he admonished Billy, and Molly laughed.

CHAPTER XIX.

Molly Feels Sense of Relief.

SOMEHOW she felt a sense of vast relief, of freedom, of exhilaration in her release from Bert. It would have been wicked to have entered into a lifelong marriage with him, and now she seemed always to have had an undercurrent of that feeling which she had hidden from herself. A little trace of resentment rose in her that girls were taught to look so lightly upon the marriage relation that it might be entered into so thoughtlessly; that a girl might select her life partner because he was a good dancer.

"I don't mind confessing that I would in all likelihood have broken the engagement, even had you not come," she told Sledge, deciding suddenly to have it all out, to be perfectly frank, and for the first time to look her own self squarely in the face. "I had realized just at the last moment," she went on, "that Bert's attitude toward our marriage was not what it should be. That does not necessarily mean, however, that I am willing to marry you. That's one thing you can't make me do, Mr. Sledge," and she looked him quietly in the eye.

He studied her a long time and felt foolish.

"I guess not," he humbly confessed. "I thought I could, but I got to let you be the boss."

She could not know how much that admission hurt him, but she vaguely guessed at it, and something like pity stirred within her.

"In that I must be," she asserted. "I thought we were going to your home," she added, puzzling over the out-of-the-way route.

"Naw, yours?"

"Mine?" she returned.

"It was to be," he corrected, "the you're a lady." He still held her hand. He looked at it foolishly. He squared his shoulders with sudden defiance. He kissed it! "Back to Marley's, Billy!" he directed and closed the door of the limousine.

Billy pulled away from the porch. She waved her hand at Sledge as they made the turn. There was a new droop to his shoulders as he stood there on the stately big porch all alone in his black Prince Albert, with a red rose in his buttonhole, and his silk hat in his hand. He seemed so forlorn, so lonely, that Molly felt as if she were leaving him on a desert island.

Around the corner of the house there painfully limped a once white bull terrier, with one eye gone and both ears chewed to ribbons and scars crisscrossed in every direction. Slowly, tortuously, but with steady determination, he wabbled jerkily along the path and up the steps and rubbed his battered old head against Sledge's leg; then lay down with his chin on Sledge's foot.

Molly tapped half hysterically on the window in front of her and fumbled frantically to get it open.

"Drive back!" she called. "I want to see Bob."

Bob looked up at her with a distinct grin as she alighted, and when she stooped swiftly down and put her arm about his neck he laid his head against her knee and whined.

"He's crazy about you," said Sledge, looking down at them both with hungry affection. "I got a big kennel out here for him, but he's lonesome. There's a place for Smash too."

"Oh, they'd fight," she quickly protested.

"Not now," he returned mournfully. "Bob's been licked."

"Then it will be safe for me to take Bob home with me when I win him," Molly mischievously suggested.

"Plumb safe," Sledge bravely agreed. "You want to take him back today?"

"Not right now, I think," she quickly replied, with a pang of regret that she had given him this needless hurt.

Governor Waver's former butler, a gray haired Englishman of torturing dignity, came out on the porch.

"I beg your pardon, sir," he said to Sledge.

Sledge turned and looked him over with disfavor.

"Well?" he grunted.

"Mr. Reeler is telephoning, sir. He wishes to know if Miss Marley is here."

"Come on, Molly," invited Sledge. "We'll tell him. Do you like that butler?" he asked as they went in the library.

"He is a very efficient one, I believe," she granted.

"All right; I'll keep him," he decided. "I did think I'd fire him and get a wooden one. Honest, Molly, that guy ain't human."

He picked up the telephone.

"Hello, Tommy! Yes, you bet she's here. No, nothin' doin'. Molly wins. Sure! Here, Molly."

Molly took the telephone, but instead of the full voice of Tommy she heard the eager one of Fern.

"Are you married yet, Molly?" Fern wanted to know.

"Not yet," laughed Molly.

"I didn't think you would until Tommy and I get out there," she chattered. "Oh, Molly, isn't it just great?"

OVER THE EQUATOR.

The Coldest Air Blows High Up Above This Torrid Region.

Winds blow not merely along the surface of the earth, but upward and downward throughout the atmosphere. They whirl about in all directions. So it is impossible to construct a weather chart that will really show the directions of the winds, for such a chart would have to be in three dimensions.

Professor Alexander McAdie of Harvard in an article in the Geographical Review describes some of the recent experiments in the upper air performed by sounding balloons. The atmosphere has, roughly, two layers, the lower called the troposphere and the upper the stratosphere. The strongest winds are found just below the stratosphere, and it would seem that pressure changes originate in this region.

The stratosphere is highest over the equator and lowest over the poles, but its height varies with the season. "At the equator," says Professor McAdie, "as we rise in the air the temperature continues to fall to a much greater height than in temperate latitudes. Indeed, the lowest temperature is found above the equator."

Origin of Satin.

The discovery of the principle of the manufacture of satin was a pure accident. The discovery was made by a silk weaver named Octavio Mal. During a dull period of business one day he was pacing before his loom, not knowing how to give a new impulse to his trade. As he passed the machine each time he pulled short threads from the warp and, following an old habit, put them into his mouth and rolled them about, soon after spitting them upon the floor. Later he discovered a little ball of silk upon the floor of his shop and was astonished at the brilliancy of the threads. He repeated the experiment and eventually employed various mucilaginous preparations and succeeded in making satin.

Wheat Russia Consumes.

Computing the population of European and Asiatic Russia at 180,000,000 and allowing five bushels per head for food and seed, the consumption of wheat in that region would amount to 900,000,000 bushels a year.

SHOWED HIM THE DOOR.

And Dickens Went and Stood Not Upon the Order of His Going.

Colonel B. was the proprietor of a widely known old house in the south which three-quarters of a century ago had earned its reputation as a well conducted tavern.

When Charles Dickens came to America he stopped at this southern house.
He was hardly settled in his room before Colonel B. was at the door. He assured him that his horses, his wines,
all the lavish hospitality of a state famed for its generosity, stood at the convenience of the distinguished visitor.

Dickens received the proffer coldly.
In London one did not accept a tavern keeper as a social equal. So it was that he returned the courteous offer by saying that when he wished the services of the innkeeper he would send for him.

For sixty seconds Colonel B. stood silent, his great face growing redder all the while. Finally he stretched out a long arm toward Dickens.

"You go, sir!" he stammered. "And do not stand upon the order of your going."

The novelist went. And it is to be

LAW OF MOTION.

Why a Ball Follows You if Thrown in the Air While You Walk.

When you throw a ball into the air while moving your body forward or backward, either slowly or fast, the ball partakes of two motions—the upward and the forward or backward motion of your body. The ball possessed the motion of your body before it left your hand to go up into the air because your body was moving before you threw it up, and the ball was a part of you at the time.

If you are moving forward up to the time you throw the ball into the air and stop as soon as you let go of the ball, it will fall at some distance from
you. Also if you throw the ball up from a standing position and move forward as soon as the ball leaves
your hand the ball will fall behind you, provided you actually threw it straight up.

Of course you know that the earth is moving many miles per hour on its axis and that when you throw a ball straight into the air from a standing position, the earth and yourself, as well as the ball, move with the earth
a long distance before the ball comes down again. The relative position is, however, the same. We get our sense of motion by a comparison with other objects. If you are in a train that is moving swiftly and another train goes by in the opposite direction, moving just as fast, you seem to be going twice as fast as you really are. If the train on the other track, however, is going at the same rate of speed and in the same direction as you are you will appear to be standing still.

Going back to the ball again, you will find that it always partakes of the motion of the body holding it in addition to the motion given when it is thrown up.

Social Structure.

What is a social structure? It may be an ant hill or a democracy. It is usually composed of a mass of individuals banded together for mutual disagreement. It is centripetal and centrifugal. Each individual would like to get out of it, but he doesn't know how. Small masses of individuals, also banded together, would like to get out of it, but they don't know how. Larger masses of individuals banded together would like to get rid of some of the smaller masses, but they don't know how. Nobody wants everybody else to stay. Everybody doesn't want anybody to stay. The result is that nobody can get rid of anybody.

Hence the social structure.—Life.

Marine Tonnage.

Displacement tonnage is the weight of the whole ship and everything aboard her. It is found by computing the exact cubic space under water, including the rudder and propellers and dividing the total by thirty-five, since thirty-five cubic feet of sea water weigh a ton. Displacement tonnage is now used only in rating warships.

A ship's gross tonnage is the cubical measurement or contents below decks and includes, in the case of passenger vessels, all the cabin space. The net tonnage is the gross tonnage less deductions fixed by law. Net tonnage excludes cabin space and machinery space.—New York Sun.

Origin of Dukes.

The word "duke" is from the Latin "dux," a leader. In early Saxon times the commanders of armies were called dukes—i. e., the leaders of the soldiery. In other words, the first duke was the first best fighting man. No regard was had to ancestry or present attainments or any other sort of thing beyond the simple matter of warlike efficiency. Naturally the leader of the fighting would, when the fighting was over, come in for the lion's share of the spoils and "honors," and naturally again the rest of the folks would "look up" to him, and by degrees his superiority would be imparted to his family, and a "nobility" would spring into being. It all rested, to start with, on brute force and animal courage combined with cunning in clubbing and thrusting.

DOLLARS FROM FORESIGHT.

The Farmer Who Notes Economic Changes Usually Makes the Profit.

Perhaps the most conspicuous cause of success in farming is prompt and fitting change in type of farming in response to economic pressure as indicated by the market price of products as related to cost. The American farmers who are most successful usually sense the operation of economic forces long ahead of their neighbors. A large number of farmers change an old established system only when forced by dire necessity.

Not only is there the greatest opportunity to any individual farmer through quickly modifying his organization in response to changed markets, but such readjustment is of great value to the whole community, for such action in time becomes corrective of the changed condition from which it sprang. Let us assume, for instance, that there is a community engaged largely in live stock production and that through some cause feed prices advance to such a point that there is more money in selling the raw product than in feeding. Under such conditions a large number of farseeing farmers will quickly curtail their live stock industry and become sellers of raw feed products. This in turn has a tendency to reduce feed prices and to increase the price of live stock products, thus bringing about the former balance.

dipped in very strong lime sulphur solution or very strong thick soap solution, or spray the infested trees when the young are crawling on the bark with tobacco decoction, kerosene emulsion or soap solution. After the leaves drop this fall spray again with the strong lime sulphur solution."

CORN EAR WORMS.

Corn ear worm injury can be materially reduced by thoroughly dusting the silk with arsenate of lead. The cost of the treatment is prohibitive for field corn, but in the case of sweet corn the application of arsenate of lead pays because corn that is free from worms brings from 5 to 10 cents a dozen ears more than that which is wormy, and for home consumption it is a great satisfaction to have corn that has not been half eaten by ear worms.—Kansas Farmer.

RYE FOR EARLY PASTURE.

Should Be Sown in September, According to Minnesota Bulletin.

In the spring of the year nearly every farmer is confronted with a shortage of feed for his live stock. Rye offers one of the best means of providing for early spring pasture, especially for hogs and sheep.

Few farmers can afford to operate their places, declares a Minnesota bulletin, without at least from one to five acres of winter rye to furnish pasture for their stock early in the spring. Rye will not only furnish good pasture, but will do much to help eradicate weeds. It also offers an opportunity for growing another forage crop, like fodder corn or millet, on the same field later in the season.

Rye for spring pasture should be sown during the early part of September, and in no case later than the first of October. In order to live through the winter it must get a good start before cold weather sets in. The land should be plowed deep and well prepared before the crop is sown. A good seed bed is essential, as this crop may suffer for the want of moisture and from a severe winter. A good start in the fall will do much to put it through the winter in good shape.

The rye for pasture should be sown at the rate of about two bushels per acre with a grain drill and harrowed several times after the grain is sown.

In the spring, as soon as the warm weather sets in, the rye will make rapid growth, and when from six to eight inches high it will be ready for the hogs or sheep. Minnesota farmers have not made as good use of the rye crop for pasture as they should. If you have not already planned to sow a field of rye, give it a trial this year and reap the benefit of this crop as early pasture on your farm.

PROFIT IN ORCHARD RENOVATION.

A county agent in Massachusetts began in 1914 a demonstration in the renovation of some old apple orchards. The following year from a two acre orchard heavily infested with San Jose scale, when the demonstration was begun, a net profit of $210.77 was realized after paying for spray materials, man and horse labor, 5 per cent interest on the land, trees and working capital, taxes and all other expenses incident to the proper management of the orchard.

The net cost of developing young orchards in the same county has been reduced greatly by growing cash crops among the trees, as suggested by the county agent. In the case of an eight acre young orchard the crop so grown in 1916 met all the costs of the year properly chargeable, besides paying for some permanent improvements, and lacked only $10.88 of paying for the trees, planting, etc.

HARVESTING THE ONION.

Requires as Much Skill as in the Growing.

The battle is only half fought when the onions are grown. Properly harvesting the onion is just as important and requires just as much skill as the growing, says a contributor to the Farm Progress.

We have raised several kinds of onions, including some raised from the seed, the potato or multiplier onion and the onions grown from cloves. We find that they all require about the same care in harvesting.

We used to make the mistake of toping our onions when the top was green, and consequently a large portion of them rotted. Of late years we do not top them, but leave the top on the onion till it dries up and drops off of its own accord.

We pull our potato onions when the tops are yellow and have begun to dry some. We leave them in small piles till they are pretty well dried, stirring them every day. They are then removed to an old shed and spread thinly over the floor. This is dry, but well ventilated. In a few weeks the top will fall off when the onion is picked up.

When the top is cut off too soon the onions begin to get soft in the neck and soon spoil. By following the other method they keep extremely well.

We treat our seed onions in like manner unless we are going to dispose of them at once. We let the tops cure fairly well before pulling, and if intending to store them they are put in a dry, well ventilated place to cure. If not, we let them dry in the patch, then top them not too closely and pack in open crates for shipping.

The clove onions are raised principally for the cloves. The cloves are gathered when ripe and spread in a dry place or tied up in open sacks after they are well cured.

"THREE C'S" OF MILK

Dairy specialists have a simple little formula for care of milk in the home. The same formula will aid in keeping milk anywhere. The rule of the "Three C's" standing for "Clean," "Cold" and "Covered," are simple rules for the dairyman, even though written with the care of the milk in mind. That a cow should be one of the cows of the articles of faith, the second means a well filled icebox on the farm, and the third a means care and forethought for Farm Progress.

RULES FOR TREE PLANTING

Select the kind of a tree that grows best in your location, variety from those already in your vicinity.

A ten to twelve foot tree is the best size for ordinary. It should be free from scars. The trunk should be straight and should have a long leader.

When digging trees in the ground, be careful not to injure the roots as many of the fibrous roots are possible. Nursery grown trees should be planted several times and root systems.

Do not allow the roots to dry. Keep them moist and Spraying For Codling Moth.

In answer to a correspondent who asks when it is necessary to spray for the codling moth and whether spraying for the San Jose scale will hurt trees already in bloom, Zootologist H. A. Surface of the Pennsylvania department of agriculture says:

"It is always considered necessary to spray all apple, pear and quince trees for this pest when they are bearing fruit. If there is no fruit on your trees there is no need to spray for codling moth. As you doubtless know, this is the insect that makes wormy apples, pears and quinces. Every good fruit grower sprays for this pest, if for no other. The first spraying is made shortly after the petals or flowers fall, and the second spraying is made about a month from that date. The material that should be used is one gallon and one quart of strong lime sulphur solution, either home-made or commercial, in forty-nine gallons of water, and to this is added either one pound of dry arsenate of lead or two pounds of arsenate of lead paste. For the second spray use the same material as for the first.

"Where you have much San Jose scale present it is a good plan to wash all the bark of trunks or twigs that can be reached with a paint brush

Willows From Cuttings.

Willows root readily from cuttings of the young wood. The cuttings can be made almost any time in the growing season and set firmly in good soil and kept moist will root readily. A good plan is to make the cuttings in the autumn, after the tree from which the cuttings are taken has dropped its foliage. Make cuttings about a foot long and set them two inches apart in trenches five inches deep in the open ground. Firm the soil well about the cuttings by treading on it with the feet. In the spring the cuttings will take root and leaf out early in the season. When well rooted they can be transplanted into nursery rows or set out where they are to remain permanently.

Spindly Tomato Plants.

Tomato plants that are long and spindly can be planted by making a short trench a few inches deep, laying the plant down in the trench. Cover all except just enough of the top left extending out of the ground to make a good sized plant. They will continue to grow without pause when this is done, and what was a worthless lot of plants or a single plant will grow into sound, sturdy stems. Later plants are often spindly, as they are sometimes left in the boxes or beds too long. This method may be recommended for the home garden.

TIMELY GARDEN HINTS.

Salsify or vegetable oyster can be sown in some places in August for use next spring. Plants growing in the garden may be left out over winter by drawing a little soil up over the row for protection.

A small box of parsley can be grown in the kitchen or cellar for winter use or under the benches in the conservatory. Sow the seeds in the autumn.

Autumn is a good time to set out rhubarb and asparagus roots. Small fruits such as blackberries, raspberries, currants, gooseberries and grapes can be set out in the autumn; also fruit and ornamental trees. It is advisable to do this work at this season, when garden work is not pressing, rather than leave it until spring, when garden work is always pressing.

Spinach should be sown in August for autumn use. For winter and early spring use sow in September or early in October. The soil cannot be made too rich and top dressings of poultry manure and nitrate of soda will be beneficial. Sow in drills one foot apart, firming the soil well over the seeds. Give thorough cultivation and thin out the plants if they come up too thickly.

Matchbox Seed Case.

Fresh seeds of cucumber, beets, cabbage, lettuce, celery, radish and turnips retain their vitality for several years if properly preserved away from dampness. Others, like beans, carrots, onions, parsnips, peas and tomatoes, cannot be relied upon after the second year. It is best, however, to obtain fresh seeds every season.

If gardeners would give their crops sufficient care to grow them to perfection and then save seeds of only perfect specimens seed saving might be recommended, but this is seldom the case, so generally purchasing seeds from dealers who are particular to have the very best is to be recommended.

Where a few seeds are saved until another year from this year's purchases and where a few seeds may be saved from particularly fine plants a convenient seed case can be made by saving the boxes in which safety matches are packed.

These boxes can be glued together in tiers of two, three or four, side by side and six or eight boxes high. Glue short strips of tape to the bottom of each of the sliding compartments, having the tape extend a quarter of an inch cut in front of the box to serve as a handle. In this manner a case of small drawers is made, each having a tape handle so they can easily be withdrawn. Write the name of each variety of seed on a slip of paper and paste it on to the front of the drawer so each variety of seed will be properly labeled.

Celery Growing Made Easy.

The plan of growing celery by the mulching system will save the amateur both time and labor. No trench need be dug when this system is followed, and no cultivation is required. As soon as the plants have been set out the ground should be covered with four inches of fresh horse dressing, but the dressing must not be pressed against the plants. Nothing more need be done until the celery is ready for blanching, for the mulch will feed the plants, keep moisture in the soil and kill the weeds.

The High Value of Being Tough Mind- ed About Snubs and Hurts.

Faults of temper are often a serious handicap, and the girl who is constantly "getting mad" is going to end by getting left when it comes to the attainment of success.

In the first place, anger has been proved to be a real poison. It exhausts you, and a violent fit of rage can make you really ill. "Sick with anger" is not a mere phrase—it is the truth.

But aside from its effects on yourself there is the effect on others. FOR YOUNG FOLKS

A Sleepy Time Story About a Great Soldier and Ruler.

EVERY MAN TO HIS TRADE.

Happy Experience of a Farmer With the Head of a Mighty Empire—Generosity of a Stranger—A Good Riddle. Washday in the Nursery.

Tonight's story will be one with soldiers in it, said Uncle Ben to little Ned and Polly Ann. I shall call it

THE CROOKED FURROW.

Perhaps you've heard of Napoleon Bonaparte, the wonderful soldier whose skill in fighting the enemies of France won him the love of the French people and at last made him their emperor.

One day Napoleon, with one of his officers, was passing along a country road when he saw a farmer plowing in a field.

Napoleon watched this man plowing for a minute, and then he said:

"My friend, your furrow is not straight. You do not plow right."

The countryman did not know that the little man in the simple uniform was the head of the French nation, and he answered rather sharply:

"If you can plow it any better let me see you do so."

Napoleon smiled. He was quite sure he could. Had he not been brought up in the country? And he took hold of the plow and started out bravely. But the furrow was nothing but a lot of zigzags, and the farmer laughed long and loud as he took the plow from the hands of the stranger.

"Every man to his trade, sir," said the farmer. "It is plain that yours is not plowing."

Napoleon put his hand into his pocket and handed the farmer a handful of gold pieces.

The man was amazed and told the next persons who passed him of his good fortune and of the stranger.

The farmer went on to tell what the giver of gold pieces looked like.

"Why, that was Napoleon Bonaparte, the ruler of all France!" the farmer was told.

Overcome now with shame at his rude speech, the farmer put on his best clothes and hurried to the palace where Napoleon was staying.

The place was so grand that the farmer almost lost his head, but when he was shown into the room where Napoleon sat and the great man was so very kind he plucked up courage to ask a favor, and that was that his son might become a soldier.

"My son cares more for a gun than a plow," the old man explained. "His furrows are no better than those of your excellency."

Napoleon agreed to take the boy and promised that he would help him to get on.

SCHOOLGIRL WARDROBE.

What the Going Away
Girl Will Need This Fall.

Often there are so many big and important matters to attend to that little conveniences and comforts are overlooked, and having the right things and necessities at the right time does help so much!

First, of course, on the list is the trunk. Two small ones are preferable to one large one, say some schools. In this event a wardrobe trunk and a regulation trunk is a splendid combination. Money spent on a good trunk is well spent, so get as good a trunk as you can afford. This is not one of the items on which to economize.

The school will furnish you with a list of the required bedding. She'll probably want a quilted bed pad, a down comforter, blankets, and most schools suggest four sheets and four pillow-cases. Half a dozen wash cloths, half a dozen bath towels and a dozen smaller towels is a good assortment. A dozen napkins may be added, and then, to hold them all when they are soiled, add a couple of generous size laundry bags.

She'll need, of course, a suit, a top-coat, possibly one quite heavy, and such morning and afternoon blouses and frocks as her individual purse and taste suggest. Gym clothes, a riding suit and evening clothes are also a matter for individual choosing.

Comfortable shoes, not forgetting a pair of storm rubbers, even though she does not like to wear them, are important considerations. Good, heavy walking shoes for tramps and hikes,
best shoes, party slippers, gym shoes,
gaiter and bedroom slippers are essential. A stout denim shoe bag is a satisfactory addition to the list.

Two Egg Cake.

Won't you all try this new recipe for cake? Two eggs beaten separately, one cupful of sugar, one cupful of flour, one teaspoonful of cream of tartar, one-half teaspoonful of soda, one-half cupful of hot milk. Flavor and bake forty minutes in a moderate oven.

TREAT OF A BLOUSE

They Say Lingerie Is Coming In Again
For Waists.

Hand embroidery done on fine bat-tiste gives this blouse for wear with suits. All seams are hemstitched, and the V neck closes with a lace collar and a jabot down the front. This model is a good one also for a georgette crepe blouse.

One Good Idea.

If you have in your wardrobe one of those old embroidered voile dresses with the narrow skirt of two years back you will appreciate this way of fixing it over into a wearable frock.
From the narrow skirt, if it is not too
narrow, you can cut a Russian blouse, using the border of the skirt for the border of the blouse. It may be necessary to set in side sections to widen the blouse, but these may be tucked and look as if they were intentional.
From the old blouse you will probably get sleeves and enough embroidery for a collar. Then you will have to make a new skirt, topping it with net to the depth of the blouse and using plain voile with graduated tucks for the bottom.

This extra material will not be much expense, and the satisfaction from using up the good embroidery and having a new frock into the bargain will surely outmeasure it.

your excellency.

Napoleon agreed to take the boy and promised that he would help him to get on.

And he sent the old man home happy with another handful of money and blessing that crooked furrow that had made his fortune.

A Riddle.

What is that which is not useful to a car, yet always goes with a car—in fact, without which the car could not move? A noise.

Ancient Football.

Philip Stubbes wrote in 1583 in his book on "The Anatomie of Abuses."

"For as concerning football I protest unto you it may rather be called a freendly kinde of fight than a play of recreation; a bloody and murthering practice than a felonys sport of pastime.
For dooth not every one lye in waight for his Adversarie, seeking to overthrow him and to picke him on his nose, though it be on hard stones, so that by this meanes sometimes their backs, sometimes their legs, sometimes their arms, sometimes one part thrust out of joyst, sometimes another; sometimes the noses gush out with blood, sometimes their eye's start out—fighting, brawling, contention, quarrel picking, murther, homicide and great effusion of blood, as experience dayly teacheth."

Beethoven's Fits of Rage.

Beethoven's behavior was often atrocious. In giving lessons to young ladies he would sometimes tear the music to pieces and scatter it about the floor or even smash the furniture.
Once when playing in company there was some interruption. "I play no longer for such hogs!" he cried and left the piano. He once called Prince Lobkowitz an ass because a bassoon player happened to be absent.—Dole's
"Famous Composers."

Horns of a Dilemma.

We apply the term "horns of a dilemma" to a situation in which a person is confronted by two opposite and conflicting lines of conduct, the advantages or disadvantages of which appear to balance; hence the analogy to the "horns" of an animal.

Humility Not All.

Humility is the part of wisdom and is most becoming in men. But let no one discourage self reliance. It is of all the greatest quality of true manliness.

WHAT A MERCHANT PRINCE SAYS

The fame of John Wannamaker, merchant, prince, with immense establishments in New York and Philadelphia, where thousands of persons are employed. Mr. Wannamaker says: "The question of the use of tobacco and cigarettes by the young men who make application to us for employment comes in for serious consideration, and where there is evidence of excessive use of cigarettes the applicant is invariably refused a place in our ranks, as we feel this is not only for their own benefit, but we get better service from them. 47c

At the close of the war conditions will make another change. They will never be as previous to July 1914. Changes that will surely affect the farming industry, will take place; you want to be prepared for the change. The Weekly Sun will do its part for you, by keeping you posted on the different changes that are likely, and how they will affect the farmers. It remains for you to help a paper that has served its subscribers, and the Ontario farmer, generally so faithfully during the past quarter of a century. The subscription price of The Sun remains the same as formerly, and is cheap at the price. We will be pleased to accept subscriptions for The Sun at this office.

THE BRITISH RED CROSS.

The Province of Ontario's response to the appeal of the British Red Cross has resulted in the subscription of $1,400,000, up to date, with a large number of municipalities yet to report. Lennox and Addington counties' contributions to date as reported to the Central Committee, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, are as follows:

Adolphustown.....	8 150 00
Amherst Island.....	274 00
North Fredericksburgh.....	125 00
South Fredericksburgh.....	200 00
Sheffield.....	150 00
Bath.....	125 00
Napanee, expects.....	2000 00

In addition to these amounts it is expected that the municipalities not yet represented will be forthcoming with generous contributions and that the amounts given by the places above mentioned will be supplemented by further contributions from individuals, schools, Red Cross and other patriotic committees.

Agia Promoted.

Major D'Arcy Sneath is among the latest to be honored with promotion at the front. He went overseas in the summer of 1915, with the rank of Lieutenant, in charge of a draft from the 8th Mounted Rifles, and now has the full rank of Major, dating from July last. He has been in the trenches for fourteen months, except for the period he has spent in the hospital from shell shock and wounds. He has been three times mentioned in despatches and twice wounded. He took part in the engagement in which the Canadians suffered so heavily, about three weeks ago and was the only surviving officer of a double company, that he led into a charge. They fought with desperation until their ammunition was exhausted, and then while retiring with a small remnant, he received a shrapnel wound in the hand, but we understand it is not a very serious one. Major Sneath's many Napanee friends will be pleased to hear of his rapid promotion, which he has no doubt well earned, by faithful and heroic service.

Women's Patriotic Service and Red Cross Work

Through the "U. E. Loyalist" Chapter, I.O.D.E.

The earnest attention of our workers is called to the necessity of clicking the knitting needles, with the utmost energy in the making of socks, in order to have sufficient for our Christmas parcels for our lads overseas—as the preparations for these parcels must go forward at once; indeed the parcels for prisoners of war must be sent off with as little delay as possible, for we read that AFTER NOVEMBER these parcels will not be allowed to enter Germany.

The Committee desire to offer their sincere thanks to Mrs. D. A. Nesbit, Newburgh road, for a generous donation of boots, shoes and clothing for needy refugees. Also to Mrs. McCormack for a most kind donation of clothing for the same object.

Again we would ask the friends of our soldiers from Napanee and vicinity who are overseas, either at the front, in hospital, or on duty in England or Canada, to let Mrs. Templeton have the correct address, so that parcels for Christmas may be sent ward.

Our room is open each Thursday and Saturday afternoon until 5.30 o'clock. Come and help our good work.
